EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

The temple of Sri Dharma Sastha, located at Sabarimala in the deep forest region of Pathanamthitta District in Kerala, combines the power and divinity of both Shiva and Vishnu. A multitude of devotees converge at the precinct of the temple and recite the mantra, 'Swami Saranam.' The word saranam, synonymous with the Buddhist chant, 'Buddham Saranam', signifies the selfless act of surrender. Having taken refuge at the feet of the Divine, he leaves the question of his welfare to God and remains content.

A visit to Sabari Hill, is made after a period of preparation which starts 41 days in advance. When the Guru puts on the Rudraksha beads around his neck and applies sacred ash on his forehead, the preparations begin and the pilgrim starts observing austerities, discipline and detachment. He now views every other person as manifestation of Dharma Sastha and he does not discriminate against anyone on the ground of caste, religion or region. In other words, he qualifies himself as a true devotee of the Lord. The preparation is regarded as more important than even the actual visit.

Another unique feature of the Sabari yatra is the 18 steps that lead to the deity. The 18 steps represent the 18 mountains surrounding this temple. They also represent five Indriyas, the eight attributes, three interdependent gunas, qualities sattva, rajas and tamas and vidya and avidya. The number 18 also represents the 18 chapters of the Bhagwad Gita and 18 subdivisions of Puranas, Upa Puranas. One who climbs these 18 steps transcends to the higher state of realisation. A mosque nearby is frequented by Sabari devotees who offer prayers here. — V.S. Krishnan in The Times of India

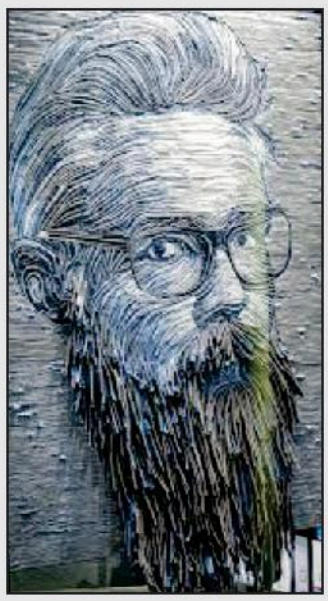
Here, school closes when temperatures drop to -52° Celsius

Oymyakon: Officially recognised as the coldest permanently inhabited settlement on Earth, the small Russian settlement of Oymyakon is probably home to the most resilient kids in the world.

Can you imagine sending your kids to primary school (years one through four) at -50° Celsius? Well, in Oymyakon, that's pretty much standard procedure, as the one school in the rural locality only closes when temperatures drop under -52° Celsius. Children older than 11 have to be even tougher, as they get to stay home only when the temperature drops under -56° Celsius. Daytime temperatures around this time of year are around -50°C, which means that pupils of all ages have to brave the cold and get to school every morning.

Artist creates detailed portraits from Denim



Istanbul: Turkish artist Deniz Sağdıç creates stunningly detailed portraits out of pieces of denim, using the different available shades of fabric to highlight even the tiniest details.

Deniz Sağdıç grew up surrounded by arts and crafts. Her father was a stained glass master, her uncle was a wood sculptor, her aunts worked as tailors, so she was exposed to art from a very early age. Ever since primary school, she spent a lot of time in her father's workshop, helping him prepare the materials and cut his stained glass windows. She also spent time in her aunts' tailor shop, discovering the secrets of the trade. So it was not a surprise when she went to art school.

Initiate e-waste collection centres

Sir,

The Karnataka State Pollution Control Board (KSPCB) should kickstart immediately e-waste collection centre in each and every district of Karnataka. Since almost all electronic scrap components, such as CPUs, PCB etc., contain potentially harmful materials such as lead, cadmium, beryllium, or brominated flame retardants, these materials affect the health of all living beings adversely.

According to EPTRI's report from 2015, 80% percent of e-waste generated in the cities is from households and also bulk consumers of electronic goods such as public and private institutions, manufacturers or IT companies. It will be more useful if KSPCB starts e-waste collection centre incorporating private organisations via a mobile application. The waste should be picked up from the user's doorstep, thereby making small households stakeholders in waste management. Users should get monetary payments for e-waste they give up.

Every year approximately more than 5 lakh tonnes of e-waste is genertaed across State and only few percent out of that will be recycled in a scientific manner. Therefore it is imperative to kickstart e-waste collection drive and mitigate pollution.

Service Roads along 10-lane NH 275 must be safe: MP

- Pratap Simha stresses on safety factor along the on-going upgradation of Mysuru-Bengaluru Highway
- Meets Union Transport Minister Nitin Gadkari, seeks shifting of underpass from Naganahalli to Siddalingapura

Mysuru, Dec. 18 (BCT)-In a bid to provide safe passage to residents of various towns and villages along the Mysuru-Bengaluru Highway-275 that is being upgraded to a 10-lane Highway (including service roads), Mysuru-Kodagu MP Pratap Simha has appealed for ensuring safety while building the service roads.

Submitting a memorandum to Union Road and Transport Minister, Nitin Gadkari in New Delhi after a recent meeting on Highways chaired by the Minister, the MP said that utmost safety has to be ensured so that the villagers and residents along the highway do not have a problem while moving on the Service Roads or while crossing underpasses to reach their villages.

The Service Roads that will be built along the upgraded Highway must be wide enough to accommodate traffic that does not move on the main lanes of the Highway. Also, the underpasses must have smooth entry and exit passages considering the fact that the towns along the Highway like Mandya, Ramanagara and Chennapatna are thickly populated.

Noting that there are several industries along the Highway, Pratap Simha said that vehicles visiting the industries or farmers carrying agricultural produce should not be inconvenienced and at the same time while building the Service Roads, the stretches must be ensured to be accident-free zones with several measures, the MP mentioned in the memorandum. He also noted that for the residents to be aware of the steps taken to build the 10-lane Highway, the National Highways Authority of India that is implementing the project must bring out and publicise an implementation report on the project.

There is a proposal to build a Railway Goods Terminal in 400 acres of land at Naganahalli near Srirangapatna and there is also a proposal to build an Agriculture University there. As per the road widening project plan, an underpass will come up at Naganahalli and this might cause inconvenience to people, the MP noted.

Instead, the underpass must be built near Siddalingapura Pratap Simha suggested and also pointed out that villagers of Siddalingapura have demanded an underpass at their village so that they would be spared of the trouble of travelling three to four kilometres to Naganahalli to reach the underpass to travel to the other side. Simha appealed to the Minister to take up this issue with NHAI officials and shift the underpass from Naganahalli to Siddalingapura.

MP Pratap Simha submitting a memorandum on Highways to Union Road and Transport Minister Nitin Gadkari in New Delhi recently.

OTHER DEMANDS FROM THE MP

- An underpass near Mathikere-Shettahalli at Maloor Hobli in Chennapatna Taluk to facilitate the crossing of over 600 schoolchildren from one side to another
- One more underpass at Yeliyur village as there is a huge demand from the villagers
- A service road must be built between K. Kodihalli and Maddur near the famous Shimsha River

MP Pratap Simha and others during a recent meeting chaired by Minister Nitin Gadkari in New Delhi recently.

Single screen cinema halls re-open... but without audience

A handful of audience at Padma Theatre yesterday.

Mysuru, Dec. 18 (SBD&SSV)- Expecting patronage by citizens, a few single screen cinema theatres in city have re-opened in the last few days.

'Padma Theatre' in Agrahara, 'Mahadeshwara' in Kumbarakoppal and 'Balaji' in Bannimantap, all single screen cinema halls, have opened the gates to citizens. Though the turnout of people was not encouraging but still the theatre owners have resolved to keep their premises open with a hope of wooing people in the coming days.

The theatres were closed down from March 2nd week after Prime Minister Narendra Modi imposed a nationwide 'Janata Curfew' in the wake of COVID-19 pandemic. Initially, the bandh was planned for a few weeks; however, it was extended to almost eight months. On Oct. 15, the State Government gave permission for the opening of cinema theatres with total safety standards but the situation was not conducive for re-opening. A few multiplexes began screening movies by taking all safety measures. However, the owners of single screen cinema halls were not ready.

As a result, still a number of single screen movie halls have not re-opened. Reasons attributed to it are: non-release of star actors or big budget movies, non-simplifications of the Government guidelines and non-fulfillment of demands such as tax rebate by the State Government. The owners are optimistic that their cry would be heard by the Government in the coming days.

Mahadevaswamy, Manager of Padma Theatre told SOM: "Screening of movies will provide employment to 40 persons. For this reason, this theatre was re-opened on Dec 6. After initial screening of 'Tagaru', we screened 'Act 1978', a Kannada movie. We are incurring loss due to low turnout of people. From tomorrow, a new Tamil movie 'Biskoth' will be screened. We will see for one month and then decide whether to run or not. During lockdown period, the power bill was Rs. 18,000 and now it has shot up to Rs.72,000. Already, Rs.25,000 has been paid and rest is pending. We don't know why so much has been billed despite the theatre been closed for many months."

"The CESC officials have no answer regarding this. It is very difficult to attract people till new Kannada movies are released," he added.

"People will not come to theatres till big budget movies of star actors are released. At the same time, directors are not ready to release new movies till the Government gives permission to fill up 100 percent seats. It has been decided not to re-open cinema halls till the Government fulfills our demands. Despite this, a few single screen theatre owners have resumed business. They have been advised not to do so as they will incur loss but it is left to them.

— Rajaram, Secretary, Mysuru City Film Exhibitors Association

"I don't know anything about mobile or computer. But I have the habit of watching movie in theatre. All movie halls were closed for over eight months. Now, a few multiplexes are re-opened but my budget is not big. I came to know that Padma theatre is open, so I came to watch movie.

In just 38 days, Rs. 1,14,18,628 has been collected at the Temple, proving a point that it is one of the most revered Temples and COVID or no COVID, there is a steady stream of visitors who bow before the Goddess and hand over offerings.

When the Temple offerings were accounted for on Nov. 9 for the first time after lockdown ended and after all religious places were thrown open to public, the Temple authorities recorded an income of Rs. 77,57,627. After that, the offerings were counted on Dec. 16 when it yielded a revenue of Rs. 1,14,18,628.

But the currency coins inside Temple Hundis have not been counted. Also, the gold and other valuables offered to the deity have not been counted. Also, there is a practice of devotees inserting gold ornaments inside the Hundis. Even those have to be counted and the total value of offerings is expected to be higher.

Immediately after the temples were open after lockdown, stringent restrictions were followed including markings for social distancing and mandatory wearing of masks. Yet, there was a steady stream of devotees. Post-October, the crowd increased as schools and colleges were declared closed and the academic activities were limited to online classes.

Weekends saw more devotees rushing to have a darshan of Goddess Chamundeshwari and interestingly, most of the devotees depended on their private vehicles for the visits instead of public transport. This also increased income at the Chamundi Hill Multi-level Parking System that was thrown open to public in November. The income from vehicle parking also goes to the Temple funds as the facility is managed by the Temple authorities.

The offerings were counted on Dec. 16 by a team of 60 members at Dasoha Bhavan and the counting process went on for the whole day. Initially, the offerings were brought in many gunny bags to the Dasoha Bhavan under the supervision of Temple Executive Officer N.S. Yathiraj Sampathkumaran and Assistant Executive Officer Govindaraj.

The counting process was done under the supervision of Chamundeshwari Temple and Palace Temples Management Committee President G. Kalaiah, Trustees R. Shivalingu, U.S. Kumari, Savitha Ghatge, former Trustee Uthanahalli Shivanna and a team of officers from Karnataka Bank Chamundi Hill Branch.

No X-mas & New Year parties

The Deputy Commissioners and Police Commissioners are given powers to impose additional restrictions in their respective districts and cities depending upon the situation.

Notification in two days

Meanwhile, City Police Commissioner Dr. Chandragupta said he would issue another notification regarding do's and don'ts on New Year eve parties after discussing with DCPs and Police Inspectors since he was new to city. "I am not aware where all the celebrations are held. I will discuss with my colleagues and issue fresh rules in two days."

No rooms in tourist spots

As a precautionary measure, Forest Department has stopped allotting rooms in popular tourist destinations like Bandipur, Nagarahole, K.Gudi and B.R.T. Sanctuary on Dec. 31 night for the last so many years. The order holds good for the current year too. But this rule was not applicable to Jungle Lodges and Resorts as people can check-in on Dec. 31 but no fun or frolic is allowed.

The only solace for the general public is that they can enjoy the safari on Jan. 1 to begin the New Year amidst nature. Earlier, people were checking into rooms in Bandipur, Nagarahole, K.Gudi and B.R.T. Sanctuary to celebrate New Year with a bang. Considering disturbance to wildlife, the Forest Department banned booking of rooms on Dec. 31 for citizens.

Even public are not allowed to stop their vehicles on roads which passes through thick jungles. Every vehicle is issued with a slip containing time of leaving a particular check-post and time at which the vehicle is supposed to reach another check-post. All safety measures will be taken to ensure strict implementation of guidelines, S.R. Natesha, Director, Project Tiger, Bandipur, told SOM.

Good Decision

C. Narayana Gowda, President, Mysore Hoteliers Association, has welcomed the State Government's guidelines on New Year celebrations in the wake of pandemic. It was good to ban parties on Dec. 31 as thousands of people gather in pubs, hotels, clubs to welcome New Year without following safety measures.

No hugs, no hand shakes during X-mas fest

The State Government has also issued guidelines for Christmas celebrations on Dec.24 - Dec. 25 banning people from hugging and hand shaking.It has asked heads of Churches to ensure strict following of COVID-19 guidelines during the festival.

Cops meet to tackle inter-district crimes

Better co-ordination and camaraderie, forensics, cybercrime among topics discussed

Mysuru, Dec. 18 (RK&BCT)- A day-long inter-district Police conference "Mysuru City Border Crime Meeting" involving officials of Mysuru, Mandya, Kodagu and Chamarajanagar districts was held in city this morning as part of efforts to step up vigil across the borders and to ensure better co-operation among officers.

The meeting was held as part of Crime Prevention Month at Hotel JP Fortune Palace under the leadership of Mysuru City Police Commissioner Dr. Chandragupta and it was aimed at achieving better co-ordination and camaraderie among Police personnel.

Mysuru DCP (Law and Order) Dr. A.N. Prakash Gowda, DCP (Crime and Traffic) Geetha Prasanna, Mandya Additional SP Shivakumar, Chamarajanagar Additional SP Anita Suddannavar were present on the dais and over 200 select officers from four districts participated in the meeting.

The Police officials are chalking out a plan in order to swiftly exchange information about criminals and focus on combined border policing, especially at entry and exit points. They discussed on the inter-district criminal gangs and exchange of their details and execution of non-bailable warrants.

The meeting chalked out a plan to intensify operations against criminals and their activities near the borders. They decided to continue with their policy of hot pursuit against criminals so that they could not stay at one place for long to plan criminal acts. In addition, action plan for joint operations against inter-district gangs, absconders and anti-social elements was discussed.

Crime prevention, reduction and detection were the three focus areas discussed in the meeting with extensive focus on forensics, latest technology in crime detection, fingerprinting and checks along the borders for criminal movement. Various aspects of cybercrimes were discussed where there is no face for the criminals and they operate seamlessly duping, blackmailing and threatening gullible victims.

Various inter-district law and order scenarios, district-specific issues and ways of inter-district co-ordination and co-operation to tackle the challenges were among the key issues discussed. Officers held deliberations on the strategies for improving co-operation, status of pending cases, problems arising while nabbing criminals (across districts) and the future course of action.

"During the meeting, the first and foremost thing, which was discussed was about the exchange of information about the crime and criminals operating in the four districts. We will facilitate co-operation to nab criminals carrying awards on their heads or accused of heinous crimes," a Police officer said.

Co-operation among officials and their respective Departments is of prime importance, as criminals have no borders. To keep a check on criminals other offenders and to contain their illegal activities, we have to strive for better policing, he added.

TENNIS TALK

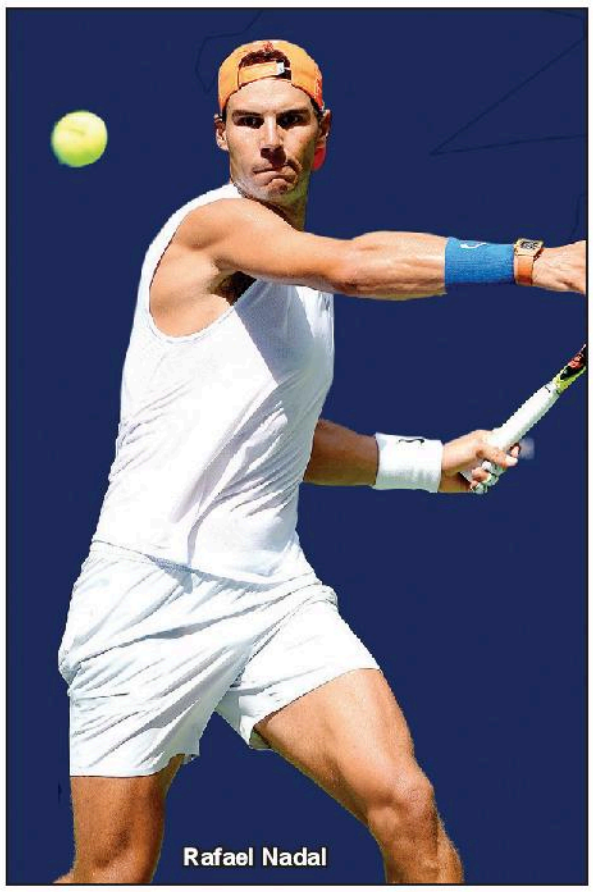
2020 Year End Review

Is it the Beginning of the End of the Three Great Champions?

Novak Djokovic



Rafael Nadal

Roger Federer

With the conclusion of ATP Finals at O2 Arena in London in mid November, the curtain closed for the 2020 ATP Tennis season. Normally the season has about 70 ATP tournaments plus over 100 Challengers and ITF Features tournaments spread throughout the year and all over the world. However, due to the pandemic, less than half the tournaments were conducted that too the later tournaments of the year were conducted with empty stadiums.

During the season, three out of the four Grand Slam events and only three out of the nine Masters 1000 tournaments could be held. The three Slam events were shared one each between Novak Djokovic, Dominic Thiem (his maiden title!) and Rafael Nadal. By winning the French Open for the 13th time, Nadal equalled Roger Federer's all time record of 20 Major Titles. The ATP Finals, which is generally considered as the fifth Major title of the season, was won by Daniil Medvedev, the fourth ranked player of the world. Thus, the top four ranked player won each one of the important four tournaments.

Meanwhile, Roger Federer, after losing in the semi-finals in the Australian Open, opted out of the tour for a knee surgery and did not participate in any tournament during the year. Thus, his ranking dropped from the third place in the beginning of the year to fifth at the end of the year.

QUANTITATIVE ANALYSIS - 2020

Sl. No.	NAME - Country	Major Titles W	Points	Major Titles F	Points	Titles Won	Points	Masters 1000	Points	Final ATP or WCT	Points	Total Points	Ranking for 2020
1	Novak Djokovic - SRB	1	1.0	1	0.5	4	0.4	2	0.5			2.40	1
2	Dominic Thiem - AUT	1	1.0	1	0.5	1	0.1					1.60	2
3	Rafael Nadal - ESP	1	1.0			2	0.2					1.20	Jt. 3
4	Daniil Medvedev - RUS					2	0.2	1	0.25	1	0.75	1.20	Jt. 3
5	Alexander Zverev - GER			1	0.5	2	0.2					0.70	5
6	Andrey Rublev - RUS					5	0.5					0.50	6

Now, let me try to make some quantitative analysis of the results. As in the past analysis, I am giving 1.0 point to a major winner, 0.5 point to the runner up, 0.75 to winner of ATP Finals and 0.1 point each to an ATP tournament winner. As per this analysis, the results are given in a table above.

As per the above numbers, the 33-year-old Novak Djokovic is the best player of the year. He also regained his No. 1 ranking after his Australian Open victory and maintained to keep his position till the end of the season. Of course, the middle five months of the year, as no tournaments were held, the ranking positions were frozen!

While Rafael Nadal had enough points to maintain his No. 2 position, the ones who really moved upwards are Dominic Thiem and Daniil Medvedev who now occupy the third and fourth position in the year ending ranking.

Now, coming to the second question that whether 2021 is the beginning of the end of the three great champions, although the writing is on the wall, one has to wait and see. As per the past history from the time Roger Federer won his first Major title in 2003, there have been 69 Grand Slam Events so far. Of these, 57 titles have been cornered by the three great champions, with three each by Andy Murray and Stan Wawrinka. Only six titles have been shared by six other individuals mainly before Djokovic started winning the Majors in 2008.

According to me, it is up to the youngsters to step up. Some of them, especially the two named above have shown their mettle. For example, in US Open Semi-finals, Nadal had a match point in his favour but Thiem denied him. Similarly, in the semi-finals of ATP Finals, Djokovic led 4-0 in the deciding tie breaker but Medvedev hit some unbelievable returns and won the match.

Now that some of the youngsters (actually at 24+ years of age they are not really youngsters) are giving a befitting reply to the old-timers, the three oldies either have to gracefully retire like Borg or Sampras (both prematurely), or like Rosewall or Connors go on playing until they start losing in the early rounds in their forties! I happen to believe that while it might be the end of the road to Federer, there might still be some juice left in the other two players.

WORD OF THE DAY

Lyceum

Pronunciation: lahy-see-uhm.
Meaning: An institution for popular education providing discussions, lectures, concerts.
Origin: The English noun lyceum comes from Latin Lycīum, Lycēum, from Greek Lýkeion, the name of a gymnasium in southeast Athens with a neighboring sanctuary of Apóllōn Lýkios / Lýkeios. The area was one of the places where Socrates used to ask his good-humored but troublesome questions, and where Aristotle used to lecture. The sanctuary also gave its name to Aristotle's school, the Lýkeion. It is unclear what exactly lýkeios means: It may mean "belonging to a wolf" (lýkos) because of the Athenian military and athletic cult of Apóllōn Lýkios "Wolf-Apollo." Lýkeios is also an epithet of Apollo meaning "Lycian (Apollo)," that is, Apollo was born in Lycia (his mother Leto was Lycian). Finally, because of Apollo's association with the sun, lýkeios may be from the same root as Greek lýchnos "lantern, lamp" and Latin lux (stem luc-) "light." Modern authorities consider the connection with Lycia and Leto to be the most probable one. Lyceum entered English in the second half of the 16th century.
Example: At a lyceum, not long since, I felt that the lecturer had chosen a theme too foreign to himself, and so failed to interest me as much as he might have done. — Henry David Thoreau, "Life Without Principle," The Atlantic, October 1863

PHRASE OF THE DAY

A tinker's damn

Meaning: Something that is insignificant or worthless.
Origin: There's some debate over whether this phrase should be 'tinker's dam' — a small dam to hold solder, used by tinkers when mending pans, or 'tinker's damn' — a tinker's curse, considered of little significance because tinkers were reputed to swear habitually.
If we go back to 1877, in the Practical Dictionary of Mechanics, Edward Knight puts forward this definition: "Tinker's-dam - a wall of dough raised around a place which a plumber desires to flood with a coat of solder. The material can be but once used; being consequently thrown away as worthless." That version of events has gone into popular folklore and many people believe it. After all, any definition written as early has 1877 has to be true doesn't it? Knight may well have been a fine mechanic but there has to be some doubt about his standing as an etymologist. There is no corroborative evidence for his speculation and he seems to have fallen foul of the curse of folk etymologists - plausibility. If an ingenious story seems to neatly fit the bill then it must be true. Well, in this case it isn't. The Victorian preference of 'dam' over 'damn' may also owe something to coyness over use of a profanity in polite conversation.
